THREE SOVIET FLIERS BLAZE ARCTIC TRAIL

Enroute From Moscow To Frisco, They Cross North Pole

BEGIN HAZARDOUS TRIP "DOWN HILL"

Radio Flash Reveals Coldness, Ice Forming On Wings

(By Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 19—Three Russian aviators, blazing an arctic air trail here from Moscow, sped across the murky north pole region early today and started down from the top of the world on their daring 6,000-mile flight.

Unreported for many flights, the "three heroes of the Soviet union" broke their silence shortly after midnight 3 a. m. in Salem and announced they had soared across the pole, the Russian consulate here announced.

Across the Pole
"We have been informed the fliers crossed the pole at 9:51 last night," a consulate spokesman said. "That is all the information we have."

Some hours previously, the trio reported they were streaking toward bleak Rudolph island as ice formed on their plane.

In view of the consulate's announcement, it was assumed the plane was speeding on its planned course, which if completed would surpass the distance record of 5,637 miles established in August, 1935, between New York and Syria by the Frenchmen Paul Coudas and Maurice Rossi.

The trio, Pilot Valeri Pavlovitch Chkalov, 33; Co-pilot Georgi Filipovich Baidukov, 30, and Navigator Alexander Vassilevitch Belakov, 40, reported to Moscow the big, single-motored plane was working well, but weather conditions forced "blind flying."

"We're getting colder," their radio flash last night. "We are heading directly toward Rudolph island radio station." They mentioned a light crust of ice forming on the plane but whether it reached impending proportions was not disclosed.

The hazardous flight, which turned back the first trail blazers in 1935, began from Chelkoff airfield, near Moscow, at 4:05 a. m. Friday (8:05 p. m. Thursday eastern standard time).

Censorship Is Tight

Behind a veil of nearly airtight censorship, the fliers were many hours on their way before news of the venture leaked out. Eyed, then, progress reports were guarded.

At midnight, (3 A. M. EST) the trio had been in the air practically 31 hours but not apparently reached the half-way point.

Official estimates were unavailable as to the probable arrival time at Oakland, should the non-stop flight be completed, but it appeared the journey might take 48 hours or longer, which would mean landing Saturday night or Sunday morning.

The plane has a gasoline capacity of 2,000 gallons, enough to supply the 12-cylinder, 950 horsepower motor for 100 hours.

From Washington came the only official reports of progress, relayed to officials there from the U. S. army signal corps radio station at Anchorage, Alaska.

An embassy spokesman pointed out that once the fliers cross the polar region and start the "down-

Sir James M. Barrie, Author of Immortal Peter Pan, Is Dead

LONDON, June 19—Sir James M. Barrie, creator of the immortal Peter Pan, died today. He was 77 years old.

The British playwright and novelist, who gave to the world the piquant story of the little boy who wouldn't grow up, was taken to a London nursing home on June 11, suffering from pneumonia. He had been ill a long time.

Early this morning, Peter Davies, who as a little boy inspired Barrie to write the story of Peter Pan and his "never-never-land," reached the dying author's bedside.

At that time the doctors were announcing that Sir James' life was "slowly ebbing away."

Shortly before 8 a. m., Sir James became unconscious. But Davies stayed until the end.

Motorists Unhurt In Two Accidents

Two district automobile accidents in which the occupants of the cars involved escaped unhurt, were investigated by Salem state highway patrolmen Friday.

A machine driven by R. S. Enten of Leetonia and a truck driven by Warren Calvin of Greenfield, owned by the Arrow Feed Service of Salem, collided on the Franklin Square road, three miles southeast of Salem, at 5 p. m.

The second accident early yesterday morning occurred on the Leetonia-Columbiana road, near Columbiana, and involved cars driven by W. E. Hoffmaster of R. D. 1, New Waterford, and Thomas Jenkins of R. D. 1, North Lima.

WILL TAKE PART IN BOYS' STATE

Five Salem Youths Leave For Ten-Day Visit In Columbus

Five Salem boys left at noon today for Columbus for a 10-day stay during which time they will take part in the annual Ohio American Legion Boys' State, "a laboratory in American government and citizenship."

Four of the local youths, Charles Trotter, 17, Don Beattie, 16, Harold Hoprich, 17, and William Jones, 17, started the trip to Columbus today in the automobile of H. E. Zepernick, commander of Charles H. Carey post, No. 56, American Legion.

The fifth boy, Dave Hart, 16, accompanied Lisbon's boys' state appointee in a car driven by Clarence Wetzel of Lisbon.

The Boys' State, mythical 49th state of the union, is called by the Legion "a realistic practice school in the art of governing as it is practiced under the democratic American system."

Reveals Duties of Citizens
The state not only is designed to acquaint boys with their future citizenship duties, but also to give them an appreciation of the benefits and privileges they will enjoy as citizens under the American form of government.

The Salem youths will join other youths in setting up their own city, county and state governments patterned after those prevailing in their own localities. They form political parties, hold conventions, nominate tickets, conduct campaigns and finally have an election at which they choose their own city, county and state officials.

The students have their own legislature and introduce and argue their own bills. Finally, they have their own law enforcement agencies to see that the laws they make are obeyed.

Recreation on Program

In addition to civic and administrative training, the boys are provided with such recreational facilities as swimming, baseball, boxing, wrestling, hiking and other sports.

The "citizens" of the state are housed in modern buildings at the Ohio state fairgrounds. Physicians are on duty at all times. Usually a monitor or counselor is in charge of every 50 boys. The Boys' State population this month will be 700.

Sponsors of the Salem boys are the Rotary club, the Kiwanis club, The Salem News, the Legion post and the Columbiana county vulture, 40 & 8.

Injuries Are Fatal To Sebring Worker

Children's Bible Chautauqua Opens At Church Monday

The ninth annual Children's Bible chautauqua, open to all children of Salem and vicinity will begin at 9 a. m. Monday at the Baptist church. Rev. A. C. Westphal will superintend the work and Mrs. Frank Brudery will serve as principal.

Mrs. George Peterson will act as treasurer, with Miss Frances Leasure as the registrar. Mrs. R. B. Snyder is the pianist. The primary department will be led by Mrs. A. C. Westphal and the beginners department will be under the leadership of Miss Betty Hinkley. About 25 other volunteer workers will assist in the daily sessions.

Monday, at 9, a parade will be held and horns and noise makers will feature the marching. Following the parade, enrollments will be taken. It is expected that 500 children will be enrolled for the daily two-week sessions. The sessions this year will close at 10:30.

The program will include singing, Bible study, memory work, object lessons, drills, contests, junior choir, dramatics, story telling, parties and picnics. Diplomas will be given to each child who has been faithful throughout the sessions. Commencement exercises will be held on Friday night, July 2.

There is no enrollment fee, and children of all ages are welcome from all of the churches. Those who have no church home are also invited. Daily offerings will be received to help maintain the work, which is sponsored by the Baptist Sunday school.

100 Dance Students Score In Sixth Annual Recital

Beginners and "Veterans" Present Interesting Program at High School

Marked by the professionalism and polish of a stage production, the sixth annual Bettie Lee dance recital was presented to a capacity house last night in the High school auditorium, with approximately 100 dancers and singers of varying ages taking part.

Donna Jean Roessler, Joanne Wise, Eleanor Buta, Betty Cosgrove, Joanne Roberts and Elaine Sarbin, more or less "veteran" performers among the younger members of the cast were outstanding in their song and dance interpretations.

Miss Elaine McGhee presented two specialties that brought much applause, a toe-tap dance and an acrobatic stair dance, both bespeaking many hours of training.

ROOSEVELT AND DAVEY ARE HIT AT G.O.P. RALLY

State chairman Ed Schorr Also Rapped — and Defended

ATTACK POLICIES IN STEEL STRIKE

Series of Resolutions Are Adopted As Conference Ends

CLEVELAND, June 19—An attack and defense of Republican state chairman Ed D. Schorr and adoption of nearly two-score resolutions, seven of which also carry Democratic party approval—concluded a two-day Cleveland rally of Ohio Republicans.

Delegates to the conference held under auspices of the Ohio Federation of Republican Clubs, turned homeward today after hearing Schorr attacked for not coming to the meeting, the first statewide G. O. P. affair since the November election.

"What shall we think of the alleged head of the Republican party in this state, who, after a crushing defeat, fails to attend such a conference as this, designed to rehabilitate the party," asked J. Harry Payne of Newark.

"If you had someone running your business and year after year it went in the red, you'd go out and hire yourself a man. What the Republican party in this state needs," Payne continued, "is to hire a rooting, tooting, fighting son-of-a-gun who'll be on the job all the time."

Ruff Defends Schorr

The attack brought a quick defense from former State Senator Walter S. Ruff of Canton, who also launched an attack on Gov. Martin L. Davey concerning the steel strike situation.

"I don't think there is anything wrong with the Republican party," Ruff said, "but I think there are a lot of wrong people who call themselves Republicans."

"It wasn't the fault of the chairman last year that Ohio went Democratic. Why did Pennsylvania and other states go Democratic? Was it because the Republican state chairmen weren't on the job? No, the Democrats won because they bought the election."

"You haven't anything but a playboy in the office of President-to-day," Ruff asserted. "In my home city of Canton 1,000 men want to go to work and 800 want to strike. The men who want to go to work appealed to the mayor. Do you suppose the mayor will get any help from Gov. Davey? He has been told he won't get any support from the national guard."

"Will he get any support from Roosevelt? No, whenever there is trouble Roosevelt doesn't start fiddling like Nero did, he gets out his fishing rod and goes fishing."

Adopts Resolutions
The conference, winding up its activities last night, adopted these resolutions, which coincided with New Deal aims:

Caplan Speaks

City Solicitor Lester Caplan, attending the state Republican rally at Cleveland yesterday, involuntarily became a part of the program. Caplan was called upon by George Bender of Cleveland, who was presiding at yesterday's noon luncheon.

In an impromptu talk, Caplan urged party unity, the cessation of bickering and emphasized progress and sincerity.

Caplan also served as a member of the resolutions committee.

SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY

Pupils Wishing To Make Up Credits Will Register at 8:30

Registration at 8:30 a. m. Monday will open a six-week summer school at Salem High school, Principal Harold M. Williams announced today.

The school will be conducted for the benefit of students wishing to take certain subjects and make up required school credits. The subjects to be taught by the teachers will depend upon the demand of the students.

Youths Visit Campus For Training Council

ALLIANCE, June 19—Approximately 150 older group leaders are expected on the Mount Union college campus next week for the Youth Training Council of the Northeast Ohio Conference, Methodist Episcopal church.

With Rev. E. R. Romig, pastor of the First M. E. church as dean, and Dr. W. H. McMaster, college president, as host, the institute will open Sunday evening and continue until the following Saturday evening.

Formerly held at Lakeside each summer, the meetings will afford delegates an opportunity to discuss pertinent problems under the guidance of outstanding authorities.

Held For Accident

SHARON, Pa., June 19.—John Mook of Youngstown, was in the county jail at Mercer today, unable to furnish $1,500 bond after Justice Alex Elliott of Hickory township held him on charges of manslaughter and reckless driving. Constable H. O. Moulle of Hickory township said Mook's automobile hit a car driven by Seth Gaugh of Hickory township June 9 and fatally injured Sarar Jane Gaugh, 2. Moulle arrested Mook after he left a Sharon hospital where he was treated for injuries received in the accident.

UNION QUARTERS TO BE POLICED

Action Taken by Canton Mayor After Rival Forces Battle

(By Associated Press)
CANTON, June 19—Mayor James Secombe, guarding against repetition of last night's violence in which a 20-minute clash between CIO steel strikers and a "back-to-work" group brought injuries to seven men, ordered two policemen to union headquarters today on an around-the-clock shift.

He acted on police claims that a fist-slinging melee two miles from the Republic Steel corporation's Berger division plant was followed by beating of four men at union headquarters.

Taken To CIO Headquarters
CIO strikers and sympathizers, the mayor was told, spirited the men, including J. D. Stewart, militant leader of the back-to-work movement, to union headquarters, beating them until their rescue by police. One striker was arrested on suspicion and two other men were held as material witnesses.

The disorder came even as the leader of a back-to-work movement among Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. employees at Youngstown said his men were not willing to delay their movement in the face of federal mediation.

Shouts of "we've waited long enough" greeted a request late yesterday of Canton's diminutive, slightly bald mayor that local non-strikers defer any action for 72 hours to await action of a three-man strike board at Cleveland.

The non-strikers first massed to attack picket lines at Republic's main gates but were halted by Police chief Ira Manderbaugh and Safety Director Ralph Bauhoff.

Then some 50 of the "back-to-work" contingent and about 100 strikers and sympathizers, police estimated, arrived simultaneously at a meeting place two miles from the Republic plant. Fighting followed.

Outbreak Follows Meeting
The outbreak followed a meeting of Roy L. Thomas, attorney and leader of the Youngstown back-to-work movement, with the Citizens' Conciliation council. Asked if the non-unionists "are inclined to take a little more time," he replied:

"They are not," and left the meeting at which he had been invited to speak J. C. Argetsinger, Sheet & Tube vice president and counsel, was another who gave a short address.

"We think we are right," he declared. "The sole question involved is the constitutional right of the citizens in the Mahoning valley to make a living and support their families. The rights of the men in the mill have been pretty constantly overlooked."

PATROL WILL ACT AS GUARD

Governor Rules After Grace Refuses To Close Plant

(By Associated Press)
HARRISBURG, Pa., June 19—Governor Earle declared martial law in Johnstown today, at the close of the second week of the strike in the plant of the Bethlehem Steel company.

The governor said he had received a telegram from Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel corporation, refusing to accede to the governor's request that the plant in Johnstown be shut down in order to avoid bloodshed.

Miners Plan March

The governor said that Sheriff Boyle had informed him that 40,000 miners would march on Johnstown on Sunday to encourage the steel strikers.

"With the plant open," the governor said, "the assemblage of miners and strike sympathizers would constitute a power magazine which would menace the community."

He said, "I regret that President Grace has failed to accede to my request to relieve this dangerous situation and therefore I am declaring martial law in Johnstown."

He added that he was appointing Col. Augustine S. Janeway to be in charge as his personal representative. He is asking Major Lynn G. Adams of the state police and Captain E. J. Henry of the highway patrol to report to Colonel Janeway.

The governor said that national guardsmen would not be sent to Johnstown until they were needed. In the meantime the state police and the highway patrol, about 500 men, will be in charge.

Police Are Mobilized

Earle said that Mayor Daniel Shields would be asked to put his city police at the disposal of the state officers. The home guard and the citizens guard would be disbanded and the steel plant ordered closed.

The governor, in bathrobe and bedroom slippers, declared martial law in his study at the executive mansion in the presence of Major Adams who was summoned from Johnstown early this morning, and Captain Henry, acting superintendent of the highway patrol.

He added that he intended to remain at Harrisburg for the present to direct the situation at Johnstown.

Nuts—Lack of Them Hits Squirrels At Centennial Park

Would Mr. and Mrs. John Public come to the aid of Centennial park commission.

The squirrels that abound at Centennial park are starving to death, Frank Rollins, president of the commission reports, purely because the agile, reddish-brown animals aren't getting the proper food to eat.

"It's pitiful to see the squirrels scampering about the park grounds and into the trees. Most of the squirrels have no hair on their tails," Rollins said. "They are suffering from a certain type of mange which could be corrected if the animals had the proper food to eat."

Nuts! That's the remedy as prescribed by "Doc" Rollins. Nuts, and plenty of them.

The veteran park official contends that if the squirrels had nuts to eat the condition of their hair would improve. Black walnuts, butternuts, or in fact any kind of nuts, are wanted by the park commission to feed to the squirrels. Persons having food for the animals are asked to call Rollins or leave contributions at the fire station at city hall.

SOME OF THE RESPONSIBILITY

Mayors, sheriffs and governors who have been keeping their fingers crossed and trying to keep out of both the frying pan and the fire will be glad to welcome the federal government into the strike situation.

The Roosevelt administration has sought and obtained wider authority over labor, with the result that organized labor has been overtly grateful to it. The administration has been especially friendly to labor unions.

Nevertheless, the White House has remained discreetly in the background. In the automobile industry's strikes, for instance, Mr. Roosevelt is supposed to have worked through Gov. Murphy.

The steel strike, likewise, has been denied open federal attention. Local and state government have had the responsibility. The federal government has had the glory, if any.

It is, therefore, with a feeling of relief that the hard pressed politicians who have been taking responsibility so far acknowledge appointment by Secretary of Labor Perkins, with presidential approval, of a three man federal board to mediate the steel strike.

Miss Perkins has brought the federal government into the picture, where it belongs.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Who knows more about an egg—the hen who laid it, or the cook who scrambles it?

Sen. Wagner of New York, who wrote the national labor relations act, said once, in explaining the act:

"The law does not require any employer to sign any agreement of any kind. Congress has no power to impose such a requirement. An agreement presupposes mutual consent. The law merely requires that an employer bargain collectively with his workers, which means that he shall receive their representatives and engage in a fair discussion, in the hope that terms may be voluntarily agreed upon by both sides without recourse to strife.

"The law does not under any circumstances require an employer to sign an agreement forcing any worker to join any union, whether it be a union representing the majority of his employees or not. On the contrary, it specifically makes it an unfair labor practice for an employer 'by discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment, or any term or condition of employment, to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.' The law does permit a closed shop agreement, but only where it is voluntary on the part of both the employer and the majority of his employees."—Letter to The New York Sun, Nov. 2, 1935.

The national labor relations board, which administers the national labor relations act, has said:

"The act imposes upon employers the duty to meet with the duly designated representatives of their employees, to bargain in good faith with them in a genuine attempt to achieve an understanding on the proposals and counter-proposals advanced, and, finally, if an understanding is reached, to embody that understanding in a binding agreement for a definite term.

"We must not be considered as holding that an employer is obligated by the act to accede without more (ado) to the terms of a contract presented to him by the representatives of his employees. An employer is not required to sign the specific agreement presented to him by representatives of his employees. Nor is he obligated to agree to any of their demands solely for the sake of reaching some agreement when genuine accord is impossible although both parties are acting in good faith. But the lines between these privileged areas and the duty imposed by the act is distinct; the employer must negotiate in good faith to reach an understanding, and that understanding must be incorporated into an agreement if the representatives of the employees so request."—The St. Joseph Stockyards Co. Case.

To make the situation more confusing, though that seems impossible, the public must acknowledge that Sen. Wagner is quoted in The New York Times of June 16 as saying that while his act does not specify signed contracts, "refusal to sign, in almost any instance, shows bad faith. . . and the law stipulates bargaining in good faith."

The fact remains that the labor act leaves the meaning of collective bargaining wide open. The steel strike—like many others called since the act became effective—indicates plainly that in the absence of definition contesting parties will make up their own definitions. As long as that can be done, the right of collective bargaining, which everybody agrees is a good thing, will be like the right of any man to fly to the moon, if he knows how to get there.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, June 20

Sunday's horoscope is a fairly fortunate one, with testimonies of many activities both of a business and personal nature. These may be in connection with religious, mystical, emotional or social functions, where a tendency to speculation or chance may prove pleasant.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly fortunate and pleasant year, with both business and private matters moving along in auspicious grooves.

However, a surprising or speculative transaction may eventuate, bringing profit, comfort and gratification. There might be something in the nature of an emotional or mystical stirring.

A child born on this day may be fairly energetic and ambitious, not averse to hard work, but accomplishing its ends preferably by shrewdness or strategy, intrigue or diplomacy.

For Monday, June 21

Monday's astrological forecast is for a decisive breaking away from old obstacles, stagnations or frustrations, making way for more definite progress than there has been in a long time. Much depends upon the sagacity, diligence and determination with which such upheaving circumstances are met, and in this there may be a menace of a peculiar but trifling loss or a rather curious frame of mind.

Those whose birthday it is may be congratulated on the advent of a year memorable for the breaking away of old crystallized conditions or the definite routing of impediments or frustrating circumstances.

A child born on this day may be practical, steady, diligent and persistent and should make a responsible position for itself by its dependability and thoroughness. Its mind and its judgments may be considered a bit quixotic, however.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, June 19—In one of those plays as aloof and polite as a private lake this winter I saw a chaise longue which was the only piece of household furniture I ever coveted. Enormously long, low hung and deeply cushioned, it swept into a swirl of majestic gilt headboard that spelt grandeur.

The play was nothing, but I went back three times to see what after all, shucked of pretty language, was just a beautiful big divan. I found it belonged to a famous collection, was rented and the sale price was prohibitive. So I had a copyist, with the owner's consent, turn out a cheaper version.

It came this morning. And all day I've tried to be languid, stretching out on it in my purple robe from Charvet in Place Vendome, aching to look pale and interesting. And hoping somebody would drop in I'd like to impress so I could stretch forth a wan hand and murmur "So good of you, really."

I'd like also to have long wavy locks to trickle my fingers through. But that's out. There's scarcely a thin skein left. I have a morbid admiration for sickly languor. I've often longed to be a sort of he-Camille, but the nearest I ever got to it was to recuperate from the mumps on grandma's horse hair sofa.

It may be—and likely is—a press agent drawing a long bow, but I have several times read of a notorious playboy calling up a dizzy night club from a French seaside resort to hear the orchestra play his favorite tune. Such idiocies bring out vandalism and mayhem. With the want there is in the world for a wastrel to display that sort of $500 extravagance makes me want to turn down the night club and serve as the No. 1 whipping boy.

I've wondered at times when the head waiter of a high class cafe, one who gives intimate service dines. The other night I questioned Bernard, celebrated among gourmets. I learn it is a custom for such experts to eat after all patrons have been served for the night. The psychology is simple but obvious. The head-waiter, to be enthusiastic, must have a razor edge to his appetite so he can appropriately and realistically oo-la-la as he lifts the silver lids from this dish and that. The great Vatel once said: "No cook or waiter can expertly serve the hungry with a well fed stomach."

Newspapermen are generally pleased that M. H. Aylesworth, the radio chieftain, has become a member of the clan. Most reporters spell his widely known nick-name Deke, which is error. It is Deac—short for Deacon—a frequent sobriquet for a clergyman's son. Aylesworth has always since his rise in radio been partial to newspapermen. His closest friend is Kent Cooper, the A. P. chieftain, and he has long been a crony of Roy Howard and Bill Hawkins, with whom he is now associated. An unsmiling, glum looking fellow, he has a dry sense of humor that crackles unexpectedly. He began his career as a lawyer in a small Colorado town.

Until comparative recent years I never heard of arthritis. But today many interesting correspondents are arthritic victims. Bored by idleness, they write to lesson the tedium. Much in the manner of the retired British Army officer writing to The London Times. There must be compensation, too, in arthritis. One arthritic in a letter today wrote: "I no longer rebel against a universe in perpetual change. I simply tread water and let the mad waves roll on. I read my books as those fortunates did when there was leisure in the world, when one could pay a visit to a poem or stay a week-end in tale."

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

SCIATICA

AT SOME time or other, each of us has suffered from backache. Yet, no one can appreciate the discomfort, the real distress it is capable of producing unless he is a chronic sufferer from sciatica.

Many persons suffer from this affliction. Yet few of its victims take the necessary steps to get relief. Indeed, few realize that the cause of sciatica can be removed.

There must be a visit to the doctor and a complete physical examination. Unfortunately, most persons avoid the physician as long as possible. They resort to the use of patent medicines, perhaps in many instances obtaining temporary relief, but that is not a cure.

Sciatica, as its name indicates, is an irritation or inflammation of the sciatic nerve. This nerve is one of the largest in the body. It runs down the back of the thigh, where it is embedded between the deep muscles of the leg. It divides into two branches at the knee joint and supplies the nerves under the knee, even continuing on to the toes.

Has Many Causes

From the description of this nerve, it will be seen that because of its size and position it is susceptible to blows, infections and inflammations. In fact, almost any infection in the body may set up an irritation of this nerve. For this reason, persons who suffer from infected teeth, gums, tonsils, adenoids, nasal sinuses and other infections may also be victims of sciatica.

Although backache is the most common symptom, the sufferer may complain of other, annoying discomforts of the thigh and leg. As a rule, the ache shoots along the course of the sciatic nerve and may extend from the buttock to the leg. The suffering may be so severe as to require the administration of an opiate.

Seek Expert Advice

I have seen sufferers from this condition confined to bed for several weeks. Fortunately, not all forms of sciatica are as severe as this. The patient may be free from pain for some time, and then suddenly be stricken with an extremely severe and persistent backache. Often such an attack may follow excessive fatigue or physical exertion.

Many persons confuse sciatic pain with pain in the kidney. Though kidney pain may be confined to the back it rarely is as low down and as persistent as the pain of sciatica. If you have pain of any sort and are unable to locate its cause, it is best for you to consult with your doctor. He will determine what the trouble really is.

Answers to Health Queries

J. E. K. Q.—What can be done to overcome a condition where there is a constant drainage of mucus in the back of the throat? This occurs chiefly at night and makes a most unpleasant taste in the mouth upon awakening in the morning. The nasal passage is "stuffed up" affecting one nostril at a time.

A.—These symptoms are due to nasal catarrh. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat the question.

Miss M. S. Q.—For the past two weeks I have been waking up with a sore throat. This only lasts a short time and seems to entirely disappear. What is the treatment? A.—This may be due to a catarrh condition. Make sure that there is no obstruction in the nose or throat which may be causing mouth breathing. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mr. J. D. Y. Q.—I am a young man of 24 subject to "bilious" headache about every three weeks or so. After vomiting the condition seems to clear up. What treatment would you suggest in my case? 2: What can be done for an extreme thirst in a woman of 68?

A.—Watch your diet and elimination. Make sure the gall bladder is not involved. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2: The patient should see a doctor for examination. He will advise treatment.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

"Rich Girl-Poor Girl" by FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XV

During the weeks following the first of the year Jonathan grew to look upon a northern winter with genuine respect. Old times assured him it was the worst winter in a number of years and he could well believe them, going out upon streets which were smoothly sheeted in glare ice. He told himself grimly that it was an ill winter which the doctors no good, for he was having plenty of work. Flu, pneumonia, accidents—a day hard by passed that did not bring a sprained ankle, a fractured leg, a bad bruise or a general shake-up. His practice was not always permanently increased by the fact that people often fell down at his very doorstep, but it grew steadily, if not dramatically.

He had been called to the Sutton house shortly after Christmas to attend the ex-student who was suffering from over-eating. That formidable gentleman seemed much as so when viewed prone and dejected, surrounded by polished bedsteads, pillows, down quilts and canopies. Mrs. Sutton wrung her hands and pealed the bell for the servants alternately, and whispered to Jonathan in the hall that there wasn't any use prescribing "nasty medicine" for her husband or ordering a meagre diet as he just wouldn't obey orders and if she grew insistent he would probably throw a hot water bag at her. Jonathan listened, endeavoring to maintain a professional gravity and eventually sent to the hospital for a couple of strong-minded nurses, not too young who would not, he devoutly hoped be intimidated by the presence of their employer.

The senator suffered, and not in silence. Cured, however, of his ailment he was loud in his praises of Jonathan, who had managed somehow to be both firm and tactful. And this providential laying low of the mighty brought patients to the Kimber door, patients to whom Doctor Ballard had never sent a bill.

"I'm getting on," he told Rose only on the day after Mrs. Livingston, ample, white-haired and fragrant, had sent for him regarding her arthritis, and Rose nodded and told him how glad she was. She was not seeing him as often in the earlier days. He was busy, his calls took him out at all hours and in all weather. The main highways were being kept open by snowploughs to a great extent but the used roads were heaped high with drifts and there were days when Jonathan left the little car in the garage and hired a horse and cutter at a livery stable. On such occasions, muffled in overcoat and fur toque and feeling the warmth of the soapstone Evelina insisted on putting under the buffalo robe, he felt that he had managed to get back a generation, and he liked the sensation.

Rose was having her own difficulties which sometimes she discussed with him but more often kept to herself. Larry Dexter had entered school shortly after Thanksgiving. Rose remembered him as a small, noisy boy tearing about the residential streets, picking quarrels with his playmates, breaking windows and getting himself generally disliked. Now he had shot up physically past all recognition. He was a good deal handsomer. Later, no doubt, his features would thicken as his brother's were beginning to, and would settle into a prototype of his father. But now there was merely the foreshadowing of this, in the thrust of the jaw, and he had wicked, attractive dark eyes and a consciously ingenuous grin. He was eighteen, a full year older than the average member of the junior class. At faculty meetings he was not much discussed, and never under the eagle eye and sharp ears of Mr. Martin, the principal, but whenever two or three of his teachers gathered informally together, his name was apt to come into the conversation. Rogers, the tall, thin, nervous man who taught mathematics, had been heard to remark that a good horsewhipping would do a certain young man all the good in the world, in which Rose was forced to agree.

Larry was obviously much more sophisticated than the other boys in his, or the senior class. Not that the average small town boy wasn't sophisticated, with the wisdom of his generation, a generation informed in life by the printing presses and the motion picture theatre, and learning a good deal from experience as well, with fast cars available, which can eat up miles and so lessen the distance between town and city. But Larry's wisdom was of a sleeker, more habituated, less routine type. He had not been in class six weeks before he was its acknowledged leader; and he hadn't been in class two days when two girls blossomed out into red-der lipstick and three in more elaborate permanents.

"He's plain dumb," remarked Margaret Smith, who had him in chemistry, and Rose nodded. As she had him in English literature she was perfectly agreed. Learning was not Larry's forte, he was no student. He'd graduated—if he did graduate—at nineteen, and unashamed. And whether or not he would be able to go to college was another matter. Of course, he might tutor summers, providing his idiotic mother did not drag him off to Europe again "for his health."

But Rose's new preoccupation with young Larry Dexter had very little to do with his scholastic standing. She could take his deficiencies in her stride, laugh or frown in privacy over his sloppy, haphazard test papers and listen to his utterly unapologetic lack of preparation in class. It was his attitude toward herself which disturbed her. He had entered school unwillingly enough, quite unaware that about eight hundred pupils and their teachers knew why he had returned to Riverport. He hadn't expected that the nervous breakdown with which his doting maternal parent had endowed him had been very convincing. But, encountering Rose that very first day he beamed upon her cheerfully from the front row with an expression of gratified astonishment. Rose was fairly accustomed to this. She was a perfectly normal girl and she had been informed often enough that she was a very pretty one as well. If no one else had ever told her, she had merely to look in the mirror and confirm her own pleasant suspicions. She had been as popular as any girl during her own school and university days and Bill Lynd and Jonathan Kimber were not the only men in town who appreciated her charms. . . . and told her so, she thought, sighing, not in so many words. Moreover, her brief teaching experience had taught her a number of things; and she had learned that youthful pupils are prone to sudden fervent enthusiasms. To be sure, there were no red apples on her desk now, in season, no wilting field flowers. But it was a legend in the school that during Christmas recess a sophomore and a freshman had fought a bloody battle because the freshman had stated that he, for one, didn't think that Helen of Troy had greatly resembled Miss Ward.

Rose could count on loyalty and devotion from the majority of her pupils. Some of the younger susceptible girls giggled and blushed when she spoke to them, sent her valentines and left boxes of candy on her doorstep and otherwise behaved in the normal way of little fourteen year olds whose attentions have not yet been deflected into the inevitable paths. And one gangling boy who walked to school three miles every day of his life and whom she had once rescued from a foolish, harmless scrape had told her, with difficulty and a wildly working Adam's apple that she was his ideal. Yet all this had not quite prepared her for Larry Dexter.

He waited for her every day outside of school in his car and offered to drive her home. The first few times she accepted amiably, and then, on once overhearing a whispered "Teacher's Pet!" in a singularly unpleasant tone from a group of seniors standing near the car, had afterwards refused. She thought of an eighteen year old boy as a child growing up. She could not, however, think of Larry as a child. In the first place anything childish in his appearance had long since disappeared and his manner was the reverse of juvenile. In his own phrase, he had been around, he had gone places, seen things and done things and did not consider himself a school boy and it was borne in upon Rose Ward that a school boy was the last thing in the world he could claim to be, despite the fact that he was going to school the oldest, and perhaps the worst student in his class.

He waited to herself, amusing enough; a wise-cracker with a gift of arrogance and a certain charm. But one day in February when he waited for her, asking humbly enough if he could drop around to see her that evening, to talk over something he did not quite grasp in his work, she found herself at a loss for an easy reply. He was not the first pupil who had asked this of her, and she had always been glad to tell his predecessors to come, without hesitation. But now, after an imperceptible delay, she shook herself slightly and replied, smiling, "Why, of course, Larry." Ridiculous, just because his eyes literally danced in his head, and his full, pleasure-loving mouth had curved to a smile the reverse of respectful, that she should feel he was using the class work as an excuse.

It was obvious that that was exactly what he had done, for when evening came and his car sizzled through ice and snow to a stop before her door and he romped in, in his absurd coonskin coat, and made himself completely at home, he was hard put to it to find exactly what had puzzled him in his lessons. "But what was it, Larry?"

He looked at her. She wore a little dark red woolen dress and her eyes and cheeks were bright. He said, laughing, "Honest, Miss Ward, I've forgotten."

"But—" He said easily, "I had to have an excuse, didn't I?" She blessed the ring at the door which heralded Bill Lynd. Larry didn't stay long after Bill arrived. He regarded him sullenly and was so patently rude that Rose was alarmed. Bill, under his easy-going exterior had a more than adequate temper. After Larry had gone Bill asked, "What did that little beast want?" "To talk about Chaucer," Rose replied, laughing, "and he's not very little."

"No, he's not. Too darned big! Chaucer, sez you?" "Sez me," agreed the Riverport instructor of English Literature. "He's a bad egg," commented Bill after a moment, "It's a pity he ever came back here. Phil's a saint compared to that kid."

"That's a little overdrawn, isn't it?" "No, Phil's crazy, of course, no manners. Like all that tribe of top-hats, drinks too much, thinks that he—together with the Suttons, owns the world. But he's a good business man, strange to relate; and has some fairly decent traits," argued Bill, astonished at his own magnanimity, "but this youngster's just no good. If you ever have any trouble with him—" "Oh, but I won't," Rose declared with a confidence she was far from feeling. Bill looked at her keenly. He said, "Look here, Rose, you're twenty-four. Larry Dexter's eighteen. That sounds like a gap, doesn't it? Well, it isn't. He's not a

Series Of Parties Honor Miss Painter, Bride-Elect

Three more delightful affairs have been added to the list of parties given for Miss Ann Painter, whose wedding to Herbert Yengling will be next Saturday.

Miss Esther Hoopes, Winona rd., entertained girls of the Electric Furnace office at a slumber party Tuesday evening at her home. Following a hike, guests enjoyed a dinner served at a charmingly appointed table. Decorations were in pink and white. The evening was spent informally.

Bridal attendants for the wedding were entertained at a dinner Thursday evening at the home of Miss Lucille Dickinson on the Lisbon rd.

A white lace cloth, tall white tapers and orange blossoms carried out the bridal note at the table where tiny replicas of the bridal attendants, dressed as the members of the wedding party will be, were favors at each place.

Bride club associates of Miss Painter were guests of Miss Lela Naragon, Woodland ave., last night at a miscellaneous shower, when Miss Painter received many lovely gifts.

Mrs. Dana Floding and Miss Esther Stewart were awarded prizes for the evening's play. Lunch was served at the tables.

Gilbert Everhart Birthday Host

Miss Anna Ruth Vincent entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Warren Everhart, Woodland ave., at a birthday party for Gilbert Everhart. Twenty-four young people attended, enjoying a scavenger hunt, games and contests with a lunch afterward.

Prizes were given to Wallace Davis, Esther Fowler, William Schaeffer, Betty Morris, Gwendoline Dean, Herbert Arfman, Dorothy Leach, Larry Hart, Nina Eschman and Dick Cavanaugh.

Favors for guests were little candy flower baskets which marked places at card tables where the lunch was served.

Young People Meet At Mayhew Home

Young People's society of the Church of God met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Bettie Mayhew, Depot rd. Jane Smith was in charge of the lesson on "The Importance of Bible Study."

Lunch was served and games enjoyed.

On July 1 the group will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Fisher, Albany rd.

Mrs. E. S. Dawson and son, Fred, of the Albany rd., returned yesterday from Wells college, Aurora, N. Y., where they attended a reunion of Mrs. Dawson's class.

Bertha Bender of R. D. 1, Hanoverton, who entered the Salem Central Clinic Thursday, is improving.

Today's Pattern

SLENDER LINES Pattern 4359

A dainty frock that you can wear any time—any place, is this slenderizing Anne Adams fashion for the matron whose figure has fallen into "lines of least resistance." Pattern 4359 owes its distinctive charm to its nicely cut sleeves (see how gracefully they flare!) a daintily curved yoke, and a skirt panel that seems to reduce your hips to a minimum! And do note the unusual tie-ends at the low V-neck! Women who've had little sewing experience will be delighted with the ease with which this clever style may be made. Lovely in dainty flowered triple sheer or voile.

Pattern 4359 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 40. Size 36 takes 3 3/4 yards 39 inch fabric and 1 1/4 yard contrasting tie. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send Fifteen Cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Theater Attractions

Josef Stalin, dictator of Russia, will marry again this fall, to Mme. Irena Sebiova, head of a department in Moscow's ministry for heavy industry, according to reports from the Soviet.

Film fans are offered excellent entertainment next week at both theaters, opening with the Clark Gable and Myrna Loy picture, "Parnell," made from the life story of the famous Irish patriot who sacrificed a glorious career because of another man's wife. The picture will show Sunday and Monday at the State.

Miss Loy is seen as the lovely Katie O'Shea, wife of Alan Marshall as the ambitious Capt. Willie O'Shea. At the height of his power, Parnell, who never looked at a woman, met Katie, estranged from her husband.

Love At First Sight

It was love at first sight for them but Katie refused to acknowledge it until he became desperately ill. She had him taken to her home where she brought him back to health, caring for him until her husband, from whom Parnell had withdrawn his political support, sued for a divorce, naming Parnell.

For Katie's sake, Parnell refused to defend himself and the resulting scandal ruined him politically at the moment when he had home rule for Ireland in the palm of his hand.

Exceptionally well done are the parts of Katie and Willie O'Shea, Aunt Ben (Edna May Oliver), Clara (Billie Burke).

Others in the cast include Edmund Gwenn, Donald Crisp, Donald Meek, Halliwell Hobbes, Montagu Love, J. Farrell MacDonald and others.

A good double bill will be the attraction at the State on Tuesday and Wednesday. With the Hal Roach feature, "Pick A Star," is a Boris Karloff horror film, "Night Key."

The Hal Roach picture offers the following list of favorites, unknowns only a short time ago: Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, Lydia Roberts, Rosina Lawrence, Mischa Auer, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, Joyce Compton, Johnny Arthur and Wesley Barry.

In the Karloff film are Warren Hull, Jean Rogers, Alan Baxter, Hobart Cavanaugh, Samuel S. Hinds, Ward Bond and Edwin Maxwell.

"Romeo and Juliet," called the world's greatest love story, which showed here several months ago shortly after its studio release, returns Thursday only.

Shelby Jean on June 4 to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stanley of Beloit.

A daughter on June 5 to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn William Shaffer, Lisbon.

Robert Carson on June 7 to Mr. and Mrs. Carson Marple, 152 W. Fifth st.

A son on June 8 to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Kinser, R. D. 1, Salem.

Barbara Lee on June 9 to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dickey, Woodland ave.

Allan Wilbur on June 7 to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Metz, 392 Pearl st., Leetonia.

That ended that phase of the long campaign — or was it a sudden inspiration? Let them gloat over it for a little while and — Oh, oh, how about the furniture? Says he, "I wonder how much and how good furniture I can buy for what I can afford to pay?"

Remember this, you young happy people — A moderate amount of moderately priced furniture that really harmonizes into a plan will give more satisfaction than more and higher priced furniture chosen at random, without planning. Let us advise with you.

Services In Our Churches

Emmanuel Lutheran Services Tomorrow Listed by Minister

Services tomorrow for the Emmanuel Lutheran church, 261 South Broadway, as announced today by Rev. John Bauman, pastor, are as follows:

"He that heareth you heareth me," said Christ to His disciples. Thank God for the privilege of hearing His Word. Attend divine worship service in order that Christian faith may be sustained and strengthened in your heart.

Emmanuel Lutheran church heartily invites all who have no regular church home to worship there at the divine worship service at 10 o'clock every Sunday morning. This Sunday morning the pastor will preach a timely sermon. His sermon subject is, "An Article Of Agreement."

The Sunday school meets at 9 a. m. and offers graded classes for Christian education of the young. Lee Schaefer is the superintendent.

German service at 11 a. m.

Announcements
Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock regular monthly meeting of the daughters of Emmanuel.

Thursday at 1 p. m. practice of the children's choir. On Thursday at 8 p. m. the Senior choir will meet for rehearsal.

On Monday evening Rev. and Mrs. Bauman will entertain the pastors and their wives of the Youngtown conference at the social rooms of the church.

Christ, Our Friend

"This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them." A recent magazine article on the "Big Brother Movement" tells of a boy sent to the House of Refuge, and therefore attending the school at that institution. One day, in one of the classes, he was asked to spell the word "friend." The letters came slowly, "F-r-i-e-n-d," and then the teacher asked, "What does the word mean?" The little fellow studied for a moment for a way to express his thought. "Oh," he said, "he's a feller that knows all about ye, an' likes ye just the same." It was the highest thing in friendship his brief life had taught him. That is a wonderful tie that binds us to our friend in heaven. He knows it all, the mistakes, the falls, the disloyalty, the far wanderings, and still he cares. The Elder Brother is the need of all the earth. He will be your friend and mine. He knows all about us and yet He loves us."

Rev. Westphal Back At Baptist Church For Sunday Rites

Rev. Arnold C. Westphal, pastor of the First Baptist church, has returned from Michigan City, Ind., and will conduct services at the church tomorrow.

Complete services are as follows:
9:45 a. m.—Bible school.
10:45 a. m.—Morning service with sermon by the pastor.
6:30 p. m.—Graded B. Y. P. U. meetings.

7:30 p. m.—Evening worship with special music by the choir and sermon by the pastor.

Announcements
Mid-week prayer service at 7:45 Wednesday night.
Choir rehearsal at 7:45 Thursday night.

Tent Is Scene For Nazarene Services

All services of the Church of the Nazarene tomorrow will be held in the tent at Reilly field on East Pershing st. The following services will be held:

9:45 a. m.—Sunday school.
11 a. m.—Morning worship.
2:30 p. m.—Praise and testimony service.

7:30 p. m.—Evangelistic service.

Announcements
The services in the tent are being well attended, and the blessing of the Lord is upon them.

A number of folk from neighboring towns have visited the services, and brought several special Gospel messages in song which added great blessing to the services.

These services are sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene. Rev. Guy, pastor of the church, is the evangelist.

The purpose of this meeting is not to make Nazarene's out of folk but to make Christians. Denominational lines will not have any recognition in heaven. If the Bible be true, and we believe it is, we will only be recognized in heaven as the blood washed, "The Redeemed."

These services continue throughout the coming week, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend and share in these blessings of the Lord.

Friends Services Tomorrow Listed

"Ignorance of Satan's Devices" is the theme which Rev. C. F. Bailey has chosen for his sermon at the morning worship service of the First Friends church tomorrow.

Prayer service and Bible study will be held at the church at 7:30 tonight, while complete services for tomorrow and announcements are as follows:

6:30 p. m. Young People's meeting in the Harris class room.

7:30 p. m. Union service in Christian church. The minister of the church will speak on the subject, "The Hymn as a Unifying Force." A feature of the service will be the singing of hymns written by persons of the various denominations.

Announcements

Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., Boy Scout meeting.

Wednesday, 7:45 p. m., Midweek service.

Science Society Services Sunday

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science Society tomorrow. The Sunday service will also broadcast over radio station WXYZ at Cleveland, the second and fourth Sunday of each month.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, while on Wednesday the mid-week service will be held at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text is: "Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth tremeth, and all that therein is" (Deuteronomy 10:14).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth. The Lord, The God of hosts, is His name." (Amos 4:12).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is, and forever has been, God's reflection. God is infinite, therefore ever present, and there is no other power nor presence." (p. 471).

She wouldn't give her name, but this lady is shown announcing to the men in the picket line at the Bethlehem Steel plant in Johnstown, Pa., that she would form a housewives league whose main doctrine will be that if husbands don't work, wives won't provide meals.

Trinity Lutherans Observe Communion At Service Sunday

The Sacrament of Holy Communion and public confession of sins will be a part of the morning worship service at the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church tomorrow, the fourth Sunday after Trinity. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor, will preach on the subject, "The Pure in Heart."

Complete services and announcements are as follows:
Sunday school 9:45; Genesis 46:1-30; Charles W. Youtz, superintendent.

"The spirit of kindness and helpfulness is like oil poured upon the stormy sea. The turbulent and troubled world is all about us. There seems to be the lack of just everyday kindness. Some may think it beneath the heroic qualities of life to show such a spirit but it takes more strength of character and more suppression of the selfish trends of life to be kind and ready to be helpful wherever a person may be. Revenge seems to be the order of the day. Revenge never settles any issue. Vengeance only prolongs the coming of the day when kindness and helpfulness shall be the rule of life. "To err is human, to forgive is divine."

Morning worship, 11:00; sermon by the pastor.

"This Sunday begins the anniversary celebration of the organization of Holy Trinity congregation. Twenty years ago this June, this congregation came into being. On Friday evening, an historical pageant showing the past history of the congregation will be presented. It will be fellowship night, Sunday, June 27, a former pastor, The Rev. J. Paul Harman now pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Greensburg, Pa., will deliver the sermon. Sunday evening, June 27th, the combined choirs of St. John's Lutheran church, East Liverpool, under the direction of the pastor, the Rev. F. Eppling Reinartz, will present a musical concert. The public is invited to these services."

Announcements

tery there.

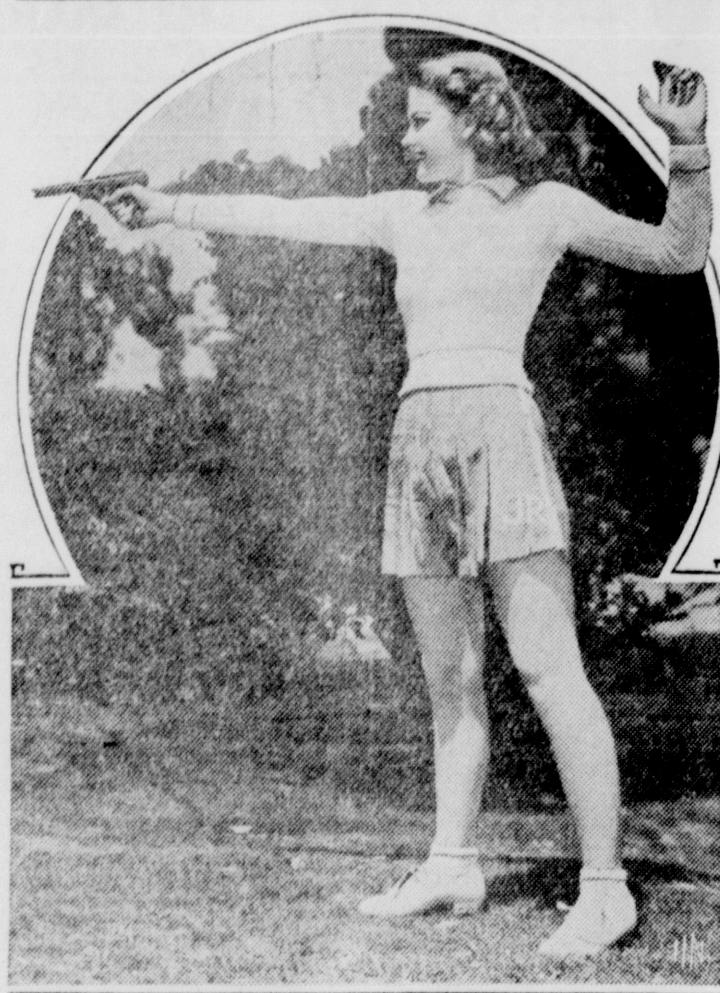

GRANT SNYDER
Grant Snyder, 73, of 503 North Garfield ave., Alliance, formerly of Salem, died yesterday at his home following a two years illness.
He had been seriously ill about a week.

A retired employee of the Morgan
Engineering Co., he had lived in Alliance 20 years, going there from Salem. He learned the machinist trade in the old Buckeye Engine
Co. here and worked as erector and shop superintendent for the company for many years. He was a charter member of the Moose lodge of Alliance. He was born March 5, 1864 at New Waterford. His wife,
Lillian White Snyder, died in 1930.

He leaves the following survivors:
a daughter, Mrs. Ray Fryan of Alliance; two sons, Clyde R. and Oral J., Alliance; one grandson; three brothers, Charles of Bellevue, Pa.,
Robert L. of Erie, Pa., and Arthur,
Washington, D. C.; two sisters, Mrs.
L. S. Frye of Cleveland and Mrs.
John W. Wolfe, Washington, D. C.
Funeral service will be held at 3:30 p. m. Monday at the Cassaday and Turkle funeral home in Alliance. Burial will be in Hope cemetery here. Friends may call at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p. m.
Sunday.

MADISON, Wis.—The life of Rasmus Bjorn Anderson, a Scandinavian leader in American cultural life, will be symbolized by a me-

OTTAWA, Ont.—A claim that he has invented a new type carburetor that enables automobiles to travel an average of 134 miles on a gallon of gasoline was made by Paul Desrochers, 22-year-old Ottawa machinist. He declares that with his in-bubbles and the engine utilizes a much larger percentage of the power of gasoline."

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—The value of citrus and avocado groves in San Diego county increased $266,740 during 1936 despite the worst frosts in many years, Crowell Eddy, county assessor, announced in fixing the value of the groves at $2,057,530.
This was before $241,440 had been deducted for frost damage.
